AN ENTHUSIASTIC ATTENDANCE-HANDSOME AP-PEARANCE OF THE ST. GEORGE GROUNDS. PEARANCE OF THE ST. GEORGE GROUNDS.
The 7,000 spectators, emeraid-carpeted grounds, handsome grand stand and the beautiful scenic effects to be used in the appresentation of the Fall of Babylon, made a pleasing picture at St. George, Staten Island, yesterday. It was all for a game of baseball, too, between the Metropolitan and Athetic clubs, and as the match was unusually well played and secting, the onlockers were in a happy frame of mind. The indians opened the game in a lively manner and the spectators charged as loudity that massengers on out-going steamers. cheered so loudly that passengers on out-going steamers of over the rail to see what was the matter on island. NEW-HAVEN, Conn., June 18.—Stagg's pitching this after-noon was too much for Princeton and they fell easy victims to Yale by a score of 10 to 4. Princeton's fielding was loose and, with men on bases, Yale's hits came in just right to net runs. Princeton scored four uncarned runs in the seventh on two bases on balls, an out, Spencer's fumble, McCauce's double along the right foul line and Durrell's single. Outside of the seventh inning only one hit was made of Stage. The features of the game were Stagg's pitching, batting and base running, Kellogg's double play to first after catching a long fly, McCance's base play, and Evans's phe-nomenal catch of Hunt's long fly. The score was as follows:

NEW-YORK DEFEATED AT CRICKET. THE NEW-JERSEY TEAM WINS BY SEVEN WICKETS-

DETAILS OF THE GAME The close of the Interstate cricket match between New-York and New-Jersey, on the St. George's Ground, Hoboken, yesterday proved to be somewhat exciting, although the New-Jersey team won by seven wickets. At the close of Friday's play the New-Yorkers had a lead on the second inning of 11 runs, with no wickets down, the acores standing New-York 60 and 25 for no wicket to New-Jersey's 74.

Cuddiby and Onterbridge, the not onts, were not at home on the sticky wicket yesterday, which had been caused by the heavy rain, and the former was soon retired. Outerbridge stayed and with the aid of Weech brought the score up to 56. 68. This gave the Jerseymen 55 runs to get to win, which

NOT AS GOOD AS LAST YEAR'S-THE MEMBERS AND THEIR RECORDS.

NEW-HAVEN, June 17 .- The Yale crew of this year is not generally considered to be as strong as last year's eight. The magnificently built Cowles and the stalwart Hartridge are sadly missed, and Appleton was a bow oar long to be remembered. The '86 crew was trained by "Bob" Cook himself, who month with the men before the race. He insisted on having absolute control of the men in ever particular, and even went so far, it is said, as to have then taught them the long, swinging "Bob Cook stroke and had them out on the water every day, rain or shine, practising it. At the very last moment he reof the strongest oars in the boat and put in a subfor a time, but Mr. Cook said that unless he could do as he wished he would not be responsible for the re-sult. At the same time he was willing to stake his Everybody knows the result. The Yale crew rowed over the four-mile course in matchless form and lowered all previous records.

This year's eight has not had the benefit of Mr.

Cook's advice to any great extent. He made a fly-ing visit to New-Haven some time ago, watched the crew take a practice spin and departed. His opinion seemed to be that the men showed up in rather indif-ferent form and were less powerful than last year's. Of course they have improved greatly since then, but

The men have been in training ever since Christmas. They worked about three weeks in the gymnasium before taking the water. A portion of this time was spent in putting in the new rowing tank, which was constructed at a cost of about $600 and proved of considerable advantage to the crew as a whole. For the past four months the men have rowed on the harbor. They have been using a shell about eight weeks. Yalo does not possess as good advantages for practice as Harvard on account of rough water. Unless there is comparatively little wind, the men have to row back and forth between the bridges, and do not have a chance to row over the full course more than once a week. The weather has been especially unfavorable this spring and there has been little opportunity to make good time. There have been several changes in the crew's make-up, but the following is the order in which the men will row at New-London: Average of eight 1624 22

EX-PRESIDENT MARK HOPKINS.

DEEP FEELING IN WILLIAMS COLLEGE AT HIS DEATH-PERSONAL CHARACTERISTICS. WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., June 18 .- As the students of Williams College assembled in chapel yesterday morning, there was a mingled feeling of 'ioy and sadness-joy se the semors had just completed their course of study and were assembled in chapel for the last time, wearing their Oxford gowns and caps; grief at the announcement of the death of the venerable ex-president of the college. Though it was known early in the morning among the students that Dr. Hopkins had died during the night, it was first publicly announced in chapel by President Carter. He had been sick only a Less than two weeks ago he was in chapel. and it was only two days ago that he was first confined to his house. The trouble was a heavy cold which he had taken. He died at his own home, where lived also the family of his son-in-law, the Rev. J. H. Denison, D. D., who is paster of the college church.

Dr. Hopkins's eighty-fifth birthday was celebrated on the 4th of last February. On that occasion he invited to his home all the members of the present senior class, then engaged in the study of mental and moral philosophy under him, and also the families of the members of the faculty. It will be long remembered by all who were present how the Doctor stood and received each one as he came, with his usual kindly smile and kindly words. At that time the senior class presented to him eighty-five beautiful flowers, as it was well known that he was very fond of them. Only those who have been under the Doctor's instruction or have otherwise had a personal acquaintance with him, knew how to appreciate true qualities of the man. General Garfield paid a rare tribute to his character and abilities when he before the National Teachers' Association at Washington: "I had rather dwell six months in a tent with Mark before the National teneders Association at waiting ten: "I had rather dwell six months in a tent with Mark Hopkins and live on bread and water, than to take a six years' course in the grandest brick and mortar university on the continent." Last full when he began his work with the senior class he said he used to know every student in college, but of late years he had been able to become acquainted only with those of the senior classes, since they were the only ones he could meet personally, and the college was larger than it used to be One very strong characteristic of the man was the evenness of his temper, apparently never in the least ruffled. In his work in the class-room he was humorous and at times witty. Recently when he was explaining to his class that a person who can get knowledge by intuition instead of reasoning everything out has more power than one who must go through the processof reasoning, a member of the class asked him whether women, who "jump at their conclusions," can be said to have more mental power than men, who more generally go through the reasoning. The Doctor looked smillingly at the questioner and without hesitation said: "Do you think they always jump right!"

Dr. Hopkins lived the philosophy he taught. During the war he always stood firm for the Union and exerted all his influence for its safety. In the last Presidential campaign he was a Biaine and Legan elector-at-large for Massachusetts and was chairman at the meeting of the electors of this State at Boston.

THE DEATH OF LIEUTENANT CLARKE. NEWPORT, June 18.—W. H. Clarke, father of Lieutenant Arthur H. Clarke, who committed suicide on board the United States steamer Iroquois at Panama last month, has received from the ship a box containing the personal effects of the officer. Among the letters found was a memorandum showing that six weeks previous to his death Lieutenant Clarke wrote several letters home which were not received. His father regards the loss of these letters as in licating Inther regards the loss of these letters as in licating that they were intercepted and abstracted because of the possession by the officer of information derogatory to some person on the ship. Mr. Clarke has also received an extract from a letter of Licatenant Wood to his father, in which it is related that Licatenant Clarke on leaving the deck to go below laid down a hait smoked eigar, as it he expected to resume it, instead of tossing it overboard, as he would naturally have done if he had got through with it, and gone below to take his life. Licatenant Wood also says that the second bullet, which it is claimed was fired siter the first shot took effect, was found in the blouse hanging up in the room. Mr. Clarke proposes to have his son's remains brought here for interment.

Justice R. W. Edmonds, of Mount Vernon, presents Schwartz and Sophie Reichardt last week. The girl has Schwartz and Sophie Reichardt last week. The girl has been in this constry only about one month. She knew her lover in Germany, it is said, and manutained friendly relations with him. When Schwartz was arrested climbing down the outside of Altman's house he was discovered in his pocket. The cirl arrest him. When brought before the first of a diverse him is pocket. The cirl subsequently confessed that she had given them to him. It was alleged that Altman bad about $500 in cash in his house at the time. Justice Edmonds tried and sentenced Schwartz on the charge of assault in the third degree, and the girl on the charge of petit larceny in the stealing of the keys, which she admitted.

The Justice said yesterday that he really meant to be married. Justice Edmonds rejied that he did not believe in controom marriages and declined to perform the ceremony. Certain the wish of the prisoners, he married them and two responsible residents of the village signed as witnesses. A number of persons were present who are unanimous in the support of the action taken by the court.

The Commissioners of Emigration have answered Mayor Hewitt's communication relating to assisted immigrants. In their reply they say :

immigrants. In their reply they say?

In reply to your suggestion that the opinion of the Counsel for the Corporation be taken as to the effect of the recent decision of Judge Brown, I desire to say that such a course is not deemed necessary or advisable, even if the Board had the right to avail themselves of the services of the law officer of the city, inasmuch as the effect of Judge Brown's decision is clearly understood by the Commissioners as in no manner restricting their statutory powers, or rendering insperative any provision of existing law. The decision was based solely upon the fact that the record of the Beard and the oral testimony of two of the Commissioners revealed the fact that the Board had not specifically found that the excluded emigrants belonged to any one of the four classes whose landing is prohibited. Judge Brown does not assume to decide whether an assisted emigrant is or is not a paper. That question he plainty intimates is for the Commissioners to determine, and had they so determined in the case brought before him and the fact had appeared on their records, he would, no doubt, have held their decision as final. Whether it was the intention of Coupress as your Honor intimates, to exclude "assisted emigrants" as such, the Beard have no means of determining except from the language of the statuta, and it certainly does not appear that such intention is conveyed in the terms of the law.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 18.-Newport is rapidly REWPORT, R. L. June 18.—Newport is rapidly filling up, not only with permanent but with transient visitors, and no one can be found who desires to stake his reputation on predicting a dull season. More than the usual number of cottages have been rented, and that too to very desirable tenants who will be heard from in no uncertain manner during the forthcoming season of fashion. Many new faces will be seen here, the number who are scheduled as "cottagers" for the first time being unusually large. All are welcome, and it is supposed that the newcomers will gain a footing in what is termed "Newport society." The weather is a triffe cool to suit the hotel keepers and others, but the cottagers do not complain and are well satisfied. COMMENTS BY THE PRESS.

"The book is one to commend itself for its thorough and able treatment of popular sports."-- Sporting Life. "A mass of intermation and statistics which is otherwise obtained only by long and wearisome search through athletic manuals, almanaes and the files of sporting journals. Here in admirable form are presented the history, the main principles and the rules of every sport, with the best records and other statistical data. . . . The chapter on yachting is a book in itself and contains a mass of interesting information."—[San Francisco Chronicle.

"The greatest care has been exercised in securing accuracy, and the names of those who have assisted in the compilation of the work are sufficient to entitle it to be stamped with the scal of approval. . . . As a book of reference the work is also valuable, furnishing as it does records of noted contests, and it is delightfully illustrated. (Philadelphia Record.

"Pre-eminently the book of all books of this sort for the clearness of its explanatory matter and the engaging manner in which it talks to the reader, imparting to him an enthusiastic interest. . . It is to answer the great present popular interest that this remarkably clever and comprehensive work has been produced. . . . The book is both complete and authoritative."- | Watertown Times. "The most comprehensive book of open-air diversions in print. Some such work as this is almost a necessity for any one who wishes to engage in or to keep posted concerning the history, rules and records of the popular pastimes.

This book is a veritable library of accurate and valuable information."—[Norwich Bulletin.

"A valuable work . . . always of interest and use."-[Boston Journal. "Bountifully illustrated; and the list of contributors embraces the names of many who are standard authorities in their different departments . . . The work will receive an enthusiastic welcome." - [Holyoke Paper World, "All the leading recreations are treated of by special writers and experts. . . Anecdotes relating to the different subjects and the records of amateurs and professionals are included. . . . A very acceptable chapter of useful facts, such as the treatment of accidents, fording of streams, care of the eyes and the life, closes the work."—

"Each sport is thoroughly described by some expert thoroughly interested in its development. . . . The instruction is plain straightforward and practical. The admirable hints on horsemanship are above all to be instruction is plain, attaignatorward and practical. The admirable films on non-commended. . . . A useful book for all the year."—[Boston Commercial Bulletin.

"It contains a full account of . . . gunning, fishing, athletics, lawn tennis, etc., and what is of more interest to us a long chapter devoted exclusively to photography. Its author is undoubtedly an expert photographer, if we may judge from the masterly manner in which he treats the subject in all of its details."—[Photographic Times.

"A very complete ectave volume on the subject . . . Aims to satisfy the increasing popular demand for knowledge as to athletic sports without the necessity of joining an athletic club or buying a costly treatise.—[Brook-
